The Issues in Virginia-

In his speech at Ford's Opera-House on Tuesday evening Mr. Bunnows, of Michigan, said that he was not familiar with the State questions at issue between the Democrats and the Republicans of Virginia; that if it had been a contest as to who should be elected Governor he would have staved away, seeing that his coming might have been called an intrusion; but that half the senators to be elected this year would two cars hence take part in the election of a United States senator, and therefore be appeared on the stump in Virginia.

We make no objection to Mr. Burrows's visit. But we think he draws a dim line when he denies to himself the right to adrise us as to whom we ought to elect Governor and claims for himself the right to advise us as to whom we ought to elect United States senator. The Senate is a practical, living, undeniable demonstra- Pe on that the fathers of the republic be lieved in the doctrine of States' rights as it was taught by Thomas Jeffenson. In the Senate the little State of Delaware i dennuciations of this sente the little State of Delaware is the squal of the mammoth State of New York. This is clear proof that if there are any State elections in the several States in which outsiders eaght not to interfere, these are the elections which involve the elections for United States senators.

We join issue with Mr. Buranows as to what is shound up in the Virginia elections of this year. We beg leave to say to him that the people of this old Commonwealth meed no instruction as to whether or not there are any national questions involved. In the words of a distinguished official of this State, who in this interance speaks for her people, we say that in Manoxis "there is found nothing to discuss but himself." There is, to the eyes of the people most concerned, no national issue now before them. They are not asked to pass upon tariffe or any other national measures. They are asked to pass upon tariffe or any other national measures. They are asked to pass upon tariffe or any other national measures. They are asked to pass upon tariffe or any other national measures. They are asked to pass upon the preservation of cur sivilization; upon the supremacy of the Caucasian race: upon the centinuance of the rule of the white man; upon the parimacy of the Caucasian race: upon the continuance of the rule of the white man; upon the parimacy of the Caucasian race: upon the numerous government; and upon the numerou wicked and destructive measures which Manoxe attempted to force through a Legislature elected upon a pledge to support ill the acts of his caucus. We will try to enlighten Mr. Bonnows in regard to Virginia matters. He does not seem to know that he was brought hither to assist an unworthy son of the Old Dominion in dragsing her down into the dust of humiliation perity, peace, and happiness. Now, Mr. Bunsows, stand up as an hon-est, candid, outspoken man, and tell the next Virginia audience you address your real opinion of the "petty boss" who in 1881 required all the Manone candidates for the General Assembly to sign the fol-

and disgrace and in destroying her pros

"I hereby pledge myself to stand by the Readjuster party and platform, and to go into caucus with the Readjuster members of the Legislature that meets at Richmond, and vote for all measures, nominees, and candidates to be elected by the Legislature as the square way across your as the caucus may agree upon.

"Given under my hand and seal this—day of September.

[L. 8.]"

You say you did not know before you came here anything about "Virginia polities." Now, don't you feel as if you ought to return home? Will you tell a Virginia audience that you approve the specimen of "Virginia politica" which is outlined in the above pledge and its history?

Again: Mr. Burnows's Virginia hearers ought to be told whether or not he approves the sort of "Virginia politics" represented by such Republican leaders as Hon. John S. Wise, Hon. John F. Lewis, Major R. B. Berkeley, Colonel W. C. Pendleton, Hon.

The Readjuster movement at first had no other than local designs, but about the time of its organization there was a great desire on the part of the leading Republicans to break the 'Sohd South,' and every possible expedient to that end was suggested.

"It was solid for the Democratic party, and standing thus, could with the aid of New York, Indiana, and New Jersey these all Democratic States) assure the election of a Democratic President."

"The next and most quiet and effectual jor S. M. Yost, Hon, Jacon Yost, Major R. B. Berkeley, Colonel W. C. Pendleton, Hon. LEWIS McKENZIE, Hon. B. B. Botts, Cap. tain J. GRONER, &c., &c., or that sort of "Virginia politics" which is represented by WILLIAM MARONE? In other words does Mr. Boanows prefer Mahoneisu to Republicanism or Republicanism to Ma-

of his charge against Governor Lex and of his charge against Governor Lex and of his charge against Governor Lex and Senator DANIEL. We quote:

In the contrast of the Hepublican and Democratic parties which General Mahone presents in his Norfolk-Convention platform, he claims as a point in favor of the Republican party that "it is not on both addes or no side of every public question." (Immendo, the Democratic party is.) If this be true, then it would seem fit that the leaders of the party ought to possess a reasonable amount of constancy to one side or the other, and of course that General Mahone should be so distinguished. But if we may judge from two established facts, we must conclude that he cannot claim the leadership of the Republicans in virtue of any such merit.

The first of these facts is this: In the year is85 Governor Lee and Hon. John W. Duniel were met at Abingdon, where they had an engagement to address the people, by a dodger circulated and signed by General Mahone, in which, after setting forth at some length what he conceived to be the enormities of the funding bill of 1871, he concluded by charging its passage into a law upon those two gentlemen.

As Governor Lee had gone home and to work upon his farm in Stafford county in 1875, had remained there until long after 1871, had taken no part in politics, had not even heard of the funding bill of 1871, he concluded by charging its passage into a law upon those two gentlemen.

Notwithstanding General Lee's repeated democrations of this charge, made all through the canvass from the time he first hoard of it, General Mahone made no reply nor explanation, though the charge of nor explanation, though the starte of the control of

with the direct testimony of two such witnesses, there can be no doubt that he had avowed himself in favor of the funding bill to each of these gentlemen and on different occasions. There can be as little that to other persons equally as credible he avowed himself to be opposed to it; because he said he was in the dodger he circulated at Abingdon. From this it follows that General Mahone was "on both sides" of one public question; the reason probably being that he was then intriguing for that he was then intriguing for the schames which he had befor re Legislature.

There is another question towards which occupied the same double position, and presents a very important one, as throwing a flood of light on General Mahone's naracter. That is presented in the following extract from a book now before me titled "American Politics," by Hon. homes V. Cooper, chairman Republican are Committee of Pennsylvania; 1831-52; 151ished March 1, 1882; Park L., pages 3-264.

effort was made by General Simon Cameron, ex-senator from Pennsylvania. He started on a brief southern tour, ostensibly for health and enjoyment, but really to meet General Mahone, his leading Readjuster friends, and the leading Republicans. Conferences were held, and the union of the two forces was made to embrace national objects. This was in the fall of 1879. Not long thereafter General Mahone consulted with Senator J. Don Cameron, who was, of course, familiar with his father's movements, and he actively devised and carried out schemes to aid the new combination by which the 'solid South' was to be broken.

We know the people of West Virginia better than the Philadelphia editor of the Intelligencer knows them. Neither in that State nor in Virginia do the Democrats object to the presence of Republican speakers. But when there is an irruption of ballot-box stuffers, unscrupulous wire-workers, unprincipled and desperate Republican partisans, then the case is different.

Are These "Dead Calumnies"?

Whilst General Manonz is engaged in smearing over facts with misrepresentations and then calling them "dead caidminnies," his attention is called to a couple of matters which we find in "Characteristic Facts in the Business and Political Career of General William Mahone."

He has not yet attempted to bury either of these statements, or even to contradict either of them, and his attention is now

SKIN CANCER.

Several years ago I was called to see a colored woman who had a malignant form of cancer on her foot. The cancer grew worse under the pre-scribed treatment, and the toes and one side of the foot were at length eaten entirely away. The patient could not have survived much longer, but I commenced the use of Swift's Specific, and it cured her sound well. That was three years ago, and there has been no return of the disease. I regard Swift's Specific a most excelient medicine for blood diseases, as its tendency s to drive out the poison.

BREAKFAST.

"By a therough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and martinarition, and by a careful application of the fine proporties of well-solected Coces, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delegately flavored beverage which may save us many heary dectors bills. It is by the judicious uses of such articles of dist that a constitution may be gradually built up built strong enough ti resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle tendelles are floating around us ready to silack whorever there is a weak point. We may escape mady a fatal shaft by keeping currelyes well fortuned with pure blood and a property nourished frame."—Ciril-series for Mady simple with builting. BOOKSELLERS and STATIONERS,
